Of the $300 million in Recovery Act funds allocated to the Section 317 program, $250 million will help existing Section 317 grantees acquire and make recommended vaccines available by using $200 million of these funds for CDC-purchased vaccines that will be made available to states and territories. The remaining $50 million will be used to provide program operation grants and scientific and technical support to states and territories to deliver the vaccines and strengthen vaccination programs. The 317 immunization funding can provide any Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices recommended vaccine to persons of any age; however, most of this funding will be used to vaccinate children in health departments and private provider practices through the Vaccines for Children Program.
